

Tell those bankd that jsut because I do business with a couple of them, they don't have the right to invade my privacy; they still need to ask. If they want to ask me while I ma in their presence, that is one thing. To just start blind calling me, will only cause me to place them in to the scum sucking category with those low life telemarketers and I will only have one choice and that will be to pull all of my accounts out of their grasp.
